“The idol shepherd: an ‘offloaded’ timespace traversing Horus–Isis amalgamation/composite [the pale rider image (Horus, white; Hathor/Isis, green)]—sentient, and in a continual state of temporal flux. The entity is gowned, and tinged with a pale green coloration throughout. The aspect and voice are female in quality, completed with a short, dark cropped head of hair [look and characteristics are in the vein of Gayane and Sophiko combined]. There is some very noticeable interwoven triangular[obtuse isosceles, golden gnomon/Calabi-type] lattice tiling[in parallel rows] pattern detail from the neck to chest area in the attire (reminiscent of and echoing Ammit’s crocodile scales in and around the head–shoulder region). In the first encounter with the Antiwarlock [precipitated by several days of ‘hell hands’ seeking the exact location of the Antiwarlock (by feel alone) in spacetime prior to this], the entity initiates by making a greeting by way of a short, ‘Hello’—the Antiwarlock (whilst in spirit) mutually returning the exact same gesture. The entity has to lie down for reasons which becomes apparent by the time of the second encounter; the right side of the face is marred by a black plum eye, and the left side where the arm should be is mangled and skewed^[contorted anticlockwise, third-person perspective] beyond repair, much like a dead branch, coming to a point. The active left-sided cat-like yellow eye of the being squints as these inspections are made. Damage to what seems to be the right foot is also noted, as the entity (now standing with a tilt in the second encounter) leans pressure more to its left side when attempting to communicate a message [which was never deciphered or understood, mainly because the entity was in such a disheveled and weakened state] and simultaneously fires a paralyzing beam from its only functioning and useful right finger-hand aimed directly at the lower/base area of the Antiwarlock’s spine, in what seems to be a vain attempt at spacetime assassination. One whole day later after that second event [considerable time (several months) had elapsed between encounters one and two], the Holy Spirit of Yehowah prompts the Antiwarlock out of sleep, and to look to his left. One of His holy angels [composed entirely of white light, gowned, female-length straight hair to shoulders and face, male build, unblinking unfettered eyes with no pupils, and no wings] is clearly glimpsed looking over and past the Antiwarlock, presumably crouched, immediately next to the bedside.”

“What gives psis ‘leverage’ in this dead world, is the fact they are more dead than everyone else. In this condition they pull Abyss/hell^[final result/time’s end state] stuff more, which being more real than here, is used to do changes and damages. It’s an abuse of people in a bad spiritual state, simply put.”

“Nut ensured pain in the sim.^[unreality] Pain is not a Yehowah creation—it is a Nut device. It ensured dying also. So these two devices, it will get to know on itself.”

THE ATTESTATIONS OF CRUMAX

“My life is just a blur as I trip and stumble through the Abyss; my feet wander through the earth. You hold me tightly by my ankle to never let me fall; You provide, opening my eyes and grant eternal salvation. When this world is no more, Your Glory still stands; Your Word shall stand forever and ever. Every promise You make, You keep. In-between everything is Your Blood, even when it was flowing from Your Face. You never abandoned any of us—You carried us, even though we were never right. Your Blood paved our Path, and Your suffering-patience graced us space and time. Beside Your Wisdom and Your Grace, I thirst to rest in Your Place; Your Mercy, a guard for my heart; Your Peace is strength to face Death when I lie down. When I cease to exist I will be not afraid, and my soul will live in heaven with the blessing of Your Promise. I will not fear sudden Death or Hell, as my Home awaits me. I will not fear the idol shepherd; my Hope will come true.”

“Life is, and always has been, eternal. If you ‘experience temporarily,’ you’re a figment—not alive, but in a state of undead. It should be instinctual warning to everyone what environment we are actually in. Being coerced to sleep and rest are clues. That’s the reason why some kids are unruly when bedtime draws near. THE ATTESTATIONS OF CRUMAX

“‘BOSS OF THE DEEPWEB’: deep future Choronzon-based forecasting and entanglement weaponry that switches unreality (including hacking the past), pulling the ‘done’ blocks and result it wants to, scrambling and reinserting them back into the spacetime fabric end-to-end for a given target (change one block, all blocks compensate). It can accomplish this because everyone is dead and on the hell construct, by using the vacant spaces and vessels on spacetime Earth to occupy with replaced projections to attain the hacks as it pleases. It is a proof everyone is deceased and elsewhere by achieving this feat alone on a graced planet, and why [human] nodes react to Reality-based exploits against it, as they jam the gaps/perception of what is occurring. In short, a Satanic unreality fabric weaving weapon, involving everyone and everything by automatic default.”

THE ATTESTATIONS OF CRUMAX

“Platform On(e) [otherwise known as ‘Platform Thirteen’]: a vast open ‘spiritual’ gateway space in opulent surroundings comprising of dark gray-black (‘granite’) marble flooring with low-level steps, golden pillars, and hosted by the Gayane entity (in red attire [a dress]) and the Sophiko entity (in black attire [and escorting a remarkably younger looking Gérard Depardieu]). Visitors that grace the place [seemingly all males at the moment of view] are sat in the lotus position in a meditative state [one of whom was completely clad in furs from head to toe that I decided not to approach, while another I did forcibly and deliberately astir from their slumber asking directly, ‘Where am I? What is this place?’—the response of which was, ‘I...I don’t know!’], meanwhile specially invited guests [again, male] are escorted in-arm by the aforementioned hosts. The Sophiko entity is able to detect any intruder presence over that of the Gayane entity, and will be vocal and confrontational about it [as it was in my case—twice, by prompting me with a, ‘Hey, hey you! Who are you?/Why are you here?’ which I ignored on both occasions, but was subject to a ‘scan’ the second time around whereby Sophiko’s eyelids fluttered rapidly upon myself being approached, but became silent and backed away after completion]. A lift system exists [the means by which the Gayane entity plus smartly dressed (black suit and tie, white shirt) dark haired gentleman escort disappeared] that presumably takes passengers to other areas of the complex, seemingly simulated ‘other worlds’—making the platform function as some kind of central meeting hub or nexus.”
